

As law students and law professionals, we stand together with our colleagues, friends, all Deferred Action for Childhood Arrivals (DACA) recipients, and the DACA community at large, who are at great risk of losing their DACA status. Regardless of the decision made by the current administration, we will continue to fight for a fair and just immigration reform process. We will continue to encourage students to achieve their educational goals and rise above the challenges presented in what surely will be some very daunting times that lay ahead.

Our DACA brothers and sisters are contributors to our economy, to our society and to our humanity. By stripping DACA recipients from their protected status, one of the worst possible outcomes will be inevitable - deportation. We cannot let this happen. Tearing apart families is not justice. It is misplaced fear.

We must stand together in the face of darkness and shed light into the shadows that our DACA brothers and sisters are often coercively pushed into. Now is the time to support our community in any way we can. Solidarity often comes in the toughest of times and it is our responsibility to show the vulnerable members of this population that they are supported and that we stand with them in their plight.

We are here! We are with you!
